Chicago Fire Causes Over $5,000,000 Loss

Fourteen Buildings Including C. B. and Q. and Other Structures Consumed by Flames in 4- Block Area—1 Fireman Killed—A Spectac- ular Blaze That Defies Control for Hours.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, March 15.—The most destructive fire that Chicago has experienced since the great fire of 1871, was brought under control early today after 14 buildings had been destroyed or damaged with an estimated loss of from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

An area of four blocks was devastated. One fireman was killed. Starting almost in the heart of the city, the fire menaced, until brought under control, a district housing some of Chicago's greatest railway terminals, warehouses and office buildings.

The fire occurred in the district just west of the Chicago river, near the Union Depot, one of Chicago's most famous railway stations. It centered in the block bounded by Jackson, Clinton, Canal and Van-buren streets but swept over adjoining squares.

James J. McGovern, a fireman, was killed when a red hot steel girder from a collapsing elevated railway trestle pinned him beneath it. Several others were injured during the conflagration, and although a number were taken to hospitals, none is believed seriously hurt.

From a spectacular standpoint, the blaze was one of the most thrilling the city has known. Starting about midnight, the flames spread rapidly and shot skyward to great heights, reddening the sky for miles and driving fear into the hearts of thousands who witnessed a repetition of the great conflagration of more than 50 years ago. It is estimated that more than 100,000 persons thronged the streets leading to the fire area, most of them in bridges spanning the river.

For several hours the fire defied control and more than half of all Chicago's fire fighting forces and equipment was called out to aid in the fight.

At 2 o'clock, it was feared by fire authorities that the flames might leap across intervening streets and perhaps the river, menacing thereby the so-called "loop" district which is the heart of Chicago. At 4 o'clock, however, after a game and stubborn fight, the spread of the conflagration had been checked and the blaze brought under control. Sparks were still shooting from smoldering debris at 7 o'clock this morning, however, and it will probably be hours before the last vestige of the fire has been extinguished.

The biggest building destroyed was the 16-story Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Building in South Clinton street. This, one of the most modern buildings in the city, was entirely destroyed. The 10-story Austin Building, the 10-story Atlantic Building and a number of smaller structures in the path of the flames are a total loss.

Approximately a block of the superstructure of the Metropolitan Elevated Railway, serving the densely populated districts of the West Side was burned down. As a result, officials of the elevated company were faced with a serious problem in bringing thousands of patrons to their work. Thousands were late and it probably will be several days before traffic conditions are restored to normal.

The burning of the elevated structure added to the danger, as high voltage electric wires and heavily charged "third rails" fell to the ground, endangering firemen and others. That the toll of dead and injured was not larger, was considered almost miraculous, as the rapid spread of the flames and the toppling of walls constituted a serious and constant danger.

Fire Marshal Shirley T. High estimated the damage this morning at $10,000,000, and described the blaze as "the worst fire in Chicago since 1871."

Although thousands witnessed the fire, countless other thousands slept through it all, unconscious of the menace to interests shared by virtually all the city. Early today telephone calls from towns and villages surrounding Chicago were still pouring in to make inquiry concerning the source of the redheaded skies that were visible from long distances away. The area swept by the fire, although containing many modern structures, likewise contained many smaller buildings of ancient and dilapidated construction, and these were factors in the rapid spread of the flames.

The fire started, according to the best information available, in the quarters of the Chicago Lamp & Fixture Co., on the second floor of a building at 531 West Jackson Boulevard. It spread to adjoining buildings of which one was the Austin Building, where large quantities of paint, oil and rope belonging to a wholesale firm, were stored. This material quickly ignited and burned fiercely, sending showers of sparks skyward; they fell on adjoining buildings and quickly set fire to them. Within a few minutes after fire had reached from the Austin building to the C. B. & Q. structure, that six-story pile of stone and concrete and steel was a seething cauldron.

Only its blackened skeleton stands today.

Three telegraphers at work in the telegram room of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy building escaped by dashing down a stair-case. Their office cat "Mollie" is missing.

Firemen had the greatest difficulty in approaching the flames because the oil, paint, etc., intensified the heat. Citizens dared approach no closer than two blocks and firemen were unable to work at close quarters.

Besides the elevated railway, the tracks of the Aurora & Elgin Electric line, were destroyed, making necessary re-routing of trains that caused much delay and inconvenience to thousands of commuters.

Probably the heaviest loss is the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, which besides the loss of its buildings, lost many valuable records and much expensive equipment.

POLICEMAN ON BRIDGE DUTY

Boys Making Practice of Throwing Stones From Bridge to Ground Below Makes It Necessary to Have Police Officer on Duty There—One Work- man Hit On Head.

For some time past a gang of boys have made it a practice of loitering in the vicinity of the new Rondout Creek Bridge and hurling missiles from the bridge to the ground below. Beneath the bridge a number of men are at work on the coal trestle leading to coal barges, and there are also a number of men employed on the Island Dock wharf.

Tuesday one of the workmen on the coal trestle was struck on the head by a stone thrown by a boy from the bridge.

The matter has been brought to the attention of Chief of Police J. J. Allan Wood and an officer will be stationed in that vicinity. Any boy caught misbehaving himself will be arrested and severely dealt with.

Parents should take steps immediately to prevent their children loitering around the bridge.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE AGAINST THEATRE OWNERS

New York, March 15.—Charges of manslaughter will be entertained against four of the men concerned in the construction of the American Theatre in Brooklyn, which collapsed on November 29, Chief Magistrate McAdoo announced today in his report on results of the John Doe investigation of the collapse.

Seven men lost their lives in the crash. Sylvester Rosenthal, Samuel Moskowitz, owners of the theatre, Joseph Gaydies, a contractor and James M. Pinlay, an inspector of steel construction were named by Magistrate McAdoo.

STOP NEARING'S LECTURE

When He Says Business Controls Colleges.

Worcester, Mass., March 15.—Dr. Scott Nearing of New York, whose lecture at Clark University was halted abruptly last night when he made an attack on control of colleges, issued a statement today declaring the action proved his charges.

After asserting, in his lecture that business men and bankers controlled the majority of college boards of trustees, Dr. Nearing said:

"The honest intellectual would be bought if he were for sale."

President W. W. Atwood of the University thereupon halted the speech: The lights in the hall were turned out to force the audience to disperse.

"This is the first time any college has seen fit to demonstrate the truth of my statement about business control of the colleges," Dr. Nearing commented.

Referendum on Enforcement.

Baltimore, March 15.—The Maryland senate at Annapolis early today after hours of bitter debate adopted the state-wide referendum amendment to the Anti-Saloon League's concurrent prohibition enforcement bill, one of the most drastic measures drawn in any state for dry enforcement. The vote was 14 to 12. The bill is now expected to go over to the house with the referendum attached.

ULSTER GARDEN CLUB MEETING

The Ulster Garden Club met with Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck on Tuesday afternoon, having as guests of the club, members of the Society of Little Gardens of this city. The speakers for the afternoon was Prof. E. A. White of Cornell University who spoke on "Flower Culture and Management of the Soil." Prof. White reminded the gardeners before him of the necessity of air reaching the roots of plants if they are to thrive. Then he told of the different kinds of soil, sand, silt and clay. We generally speak of the ground in which we plant our flowers as loam, qualifying it as sandy loam or clay loam. Pure, clean sand is the only right soil in which to start cuttings and it should be sharp and free entirely from all organic matter. River sand is the best.

The subsoil is also very important for if the roots stand in water below the top soil, they will damp off and die. Therefore proper drainage is very necessary. The use of coal cinders as drainage with added fertilizer was advocated, as this combination gives the needed drainage.

Since the plants take certain elements out of the soil, it is necessary to replace those elements but chemical food for plants must be soluble, that is in liquid form to be available to the plants. Chemical analysis of the soil does not avail much because it only shows the chemicals in the ground without showing whether or no they are in shape for the plant to make use of them.

The three elements needed in the production of flowers are nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Correct physical conditions of the soil include correct aeration of the soil, sufficient light; correct moisture; correct temperature; fertilizers.

To much nitrogen which can be supplied by fine leaf mold will produce luxuriant foliage at the expense of the flowers. Most soils have enough potash, and too much makes a strong stem growth especially. Phosphorus is what makes bloom, especially as the small hair roots are increased thereby and provide an advantageous closely knit root growth at the immediate base of the plant. Lime makes the soil sweet rather than acting as a fertilizer.

While well seasoned farmyard manure is about the best fertilizer, it is often lacking in sufficient phosphorus for the making of flowers. It can be supplemented by dry blood, the dry red blood being better than the dry black blood, and it is quickly available for the plants. Nitrate of soda, in liquid form, a teaspoon to 8 quarts of water acts even quicker. Phosphorus for the root system and bloom production is provided by acid phosphates, soluble, and the finest ground bone meal. It is not well to use too much wood ashes for flowers.

Prof. White said the department at Cornell was glad at all times to assist those interested in flower gardening as well as other gardening, and would be ready at any time to give further aid through correspondence.

After Prof. White's very practical talk, a list of hardy roses as well as certain hybrid roses, which had been prepared was read and will be published in full in a later issue of The Freeman.

The afternoon closed with the serving of delicious refreshments. The April meeting of the Ulster Garden Club will be with Mrs. Everett Fowler.

VARIED ODORS IN CITY LOCKUP

Health Board Instructs Plumbing In- spector Holstein and Sanitary In- spector Stork to Investigate and Report—Other Matters Taken Up.

Mrs. M. J. Michael, one of the members of the board of health, called the attention of the other members of the board to the odor that fills the lower corridor of the city hall early each morning, and which comes from the lockup, situated across the hall from police headquarters. Commissioner Michael at the regular monthly meeting of the health board Tuesday evening believed that something should be done to abate the stench.

Other members of the board stated that they had also noticed the odor, and it was stated that Monday evening the lockup accommodated twenty-two transient guests for the night. Many of these guests have not bathed in months, and lately some of the lockups who have applied for a night's berth have been afflicted with loathsome diseases.

It was also thought that some of the odor could be traced to the toilets in the lockup, and the board finally decided to refer the matter to Sanitary Inspector Stork and Plumbing Inspector Holstein to make an investigation and locate, if possible, the main source of the odor and to also take up the matter with Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, obtain his ideas on the best method to use in abating the nuisance, and to make a report at the next board meeting.

F. and M. Price who have been conducting a live poultry market at No. 35 Meadow street for some time past, applied to the board for a permit to slaughter poultry. The matter was referred to the sanitary committee, health officer and food inspector with power.

The laboratory committee reported it had taken out a fire insurance policy in the sum of $2,000 on the laboratory equipment with the firm of Dewey & O'Connor, and the board approved the action.

The reports of the officers, which will be found elsewhere, were adopted and the board adjourned.

"BULLET PROOF" VEST VICTIM LIKELY TO RECOVER.

New York, March 15.—Because his "bullet proof" anti-bandit vest did not shed bullets, Pierpont Potter, 38, a salesman for the vest, is in a serious condition in a hospital today.

Potter, demonstrating the vest before representatives of the New York City Railways Company, told his friend and close associate, Edward McGrath, to "hold him up." McGrath advanced to within two feet of Potter, called "hands up," and fired. The bullet entered Potter's abdomen, going through the vest. Doctors say he will recover.

HARD COAL MEN MEET OPERATORS

Each Side Willing to Renew Present Agreement But Modifications De- sired Are Stumbling Block.

New York, March 15.—Anthracite miners, headed by John L. Lewis, international president, took up negotiations with the operators here this afternoon, set on one thing forcing a suspension of work in the hard coal industry until May 1st at least, unless the operators will agree to a renewal of the present agreement with guarantees of 11 months' work in the next year.

Miners and operators agree that renewal of the present agreement will satisfactorily from out anthracite differences. Each side has a give and take program aiming at peace on the basis of renewing the present contract. Yet it is the plan of the miners not to fall into any trap and they will not accept a new agreement without certain specific guarantees.

In the miners' camp is the fear that if the existing contract is renewed, anthracite men may find themselves in the same condition as bituminous workers who got increased wages but suffered by having their work period cut down to 125 days in the last year. If the operators will consent to renew the scale now in force for a period of two years and will guarantee 11 months' work each year, there can be speedy adjustment of the case and the conference can quickly end, the miners declare.

Anthracite leaders said they don't object to an idle period of one month in each year, but they want that period of idleness to come in the spring, April or May, and not in the winter months. The leaders said the miners can afford a vacation of one month yearly, providing the remaining months of the year find them at work on a full-time schedule.

Federal intervention is not anticipated. Secretary of Commerce Hoover has told the miners that the anthracite situation is a battle between the miners and operators and that the government will let them fight it out. This is the message President Lewis brought to the miners' camp after his visit to Washington.

The program of the miners was agreed upon at a conference of the scale committee held before the general conference with the operators was opened.

The miners' case was to be presented by President Lewis. A lengthy statement will be submitted by the operators and they are expected to take it under consideration and to give the miners an answer later in the week.

GLATZBACH THROUGH

But Pays High Tribute To Mme. Matzenauer.

Delmonte, Calif., March 15.—"It's permanent so far as I am concerned." With an air of finality, Fred Glatzbach, chauffeur husband of Mme. Margaret Matzenauer, today dismissed the subject of his separation from his wife, famous Metropolitan Grand Opera star.

"It's time for the curtain," he added.

"If you are going to be a grand opera star you must learn to live on skimmed milk and applesauce," Glatzbach told a reporter. "Anything you want to do is something you should not do because it will interfere with your next performance."

Glatzbach, a young giant, paid the highest tribute to Mme. Matzenauer and threatened to thrash any man who "insinuated any reflections are being cast upon her."

HARDING BACK HOME SATURDAY

Going at St. Augustine Today— Reception to 2,000 People To- night.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 15.—Heading northward again toward Washington and the complex situation that awaits him there, President Harding arrived here this morning for a few days' rest and golf before moving on to the capital the last of this week.

The presidential party reached St. Augustine on a special train shortly before 9 o'clock and had breakfast on the train. Then Mr. Harding went to the golf links to get in a full day.

It is expected Mr. Harding will leave here Friday in time to reach Washington Saturday afternoon. The president has been only intermittently in touch with outside affairs on his jaunt through the south, and members of his party are just as well satisfied to have it so. The president, it is said, will cross the bridges presented by the bonus tangle, the coal strike menace and other pressing problems, when he gets to them, which will not be before next week.

A public reception will be given for the president and Mrs. Harding in the Ponce de Leon Hotel tonight, which will be attended by 2,000 people, members of the winter colony and permanent residents here. The limit on the number of guests was set by Mrs. Harding herself.

"I can go through with any reception up to 2,000," she said, "but on a rest trip that number is the limit."

The president himself has declined to express opinions on current issues on this trip. He informed friends that this was a "rest" trip.

Associates of the president, however, do not doubt that he will veto the bonus bill if it is passed by the house. News of the ways and means committee reporting the bill by a vote of 19 to 5, in the face of objections voiced by Mellon, Crammer and Harding, the government's fiscal authorities, was communicated to the president when he reached here, but no comment was forthcoming.

The impression prevails, however, that President Harding and Speaker Gillett, who is a member of his party, have had some conversations about the situation and it is believed possible that the speaker may throw a monkey wrench in the plans of Chairman Fordney to obtain a special rule in the house under which the bonus bill may be rushed to completion.

CHAMBERS' SKULL WAS FRACTURED WHILE WORKING

Struck On Head By Tool In Strand Shops.

Simon Chambers, who resides on East Strand, near the gas plant in Ponckhockie, underwent an operation on Tuesday at the Sahler Sanitarium performed by Dr. E. F. Sibley. Mr. Chambers is employed in the shops on the Strand, and while on the head by a tool that fell from one of the shelves. He thought nothing of the injury, as it did not bleed, but the next day whenever he had to bend over in working he was seized with a dizzy spell. He went to Dr. Sibley to have an examination made and it was found that he had sustained a fractured skull. The operation was successful.

Threat and Cheat Clinic.

There will be a free throat and chest clinic held at the Court House, Kingston, on Wednesday, March 22nd, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Dr. Stanley Wang of New York City will be the special examiner.

The Kingston Oil Company, a $30,000 corporation, to be run so far as possible along co-operative lines, for the wholesale buying and distributing of gasoline and oil at reduced prices, is to be the outcome of plans that have been for some time discussed by the Kingston Automotive Association, according to announcement made today by M. H. Herzog, the temporary president of the new concern. The necessary amount of stock has been subscribed and $10,000 additional offered by members of the Automotive Association, which is composed of the leading dealers in automobiles and accessories and the leading garages in the city.

Temporary organization has been effected by the election of Mr. Herzog as president, Peter A. Hink, vice president, and John Mark, secretary. Counsel for the Automotive Association are now preparing the articles of incorporation of the new company and plans and estimates for a fully equipped receiving and distributing station have been agreed on. Two trucks, one with a capacity of 1,000 gallons and one with a capacity of 500 gallons have been ordered.

The Kingston Oil Company will start out with the full support and co-operation of every member of the Kingston Automotive Association, so it has its customers already provided by its own stockholders.

One purpose of the new company that will interest every automobile owner in Kingston is to lower the price of gasoline to the consumer. "Instead of Kingston being a high spot in which to buy gasoline it is going to be the low spot the day we get in operation," said Mr. Herzog to a Freeman reporter today. "We are not in business for our health, but we expect to effect a considerable saving in the buying and handling of gasoline, and we do not mean to put it all in our own pockets. The customer is going to have his share in this saving and it will be no small share, either. We have the distribution system and the distributors, with no expense for acquiring or holding customers. We will buy at lowest wholesale price and sell at a fair profit, and the price of gasoline to the consumer at our pumps will come down. Just watch it drop when we get going."

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

GLOOM IS CATCHING

EVEN though we are reasonably sure that the sun is still in the sky, a cloudy day depresses us. Most of us suffer from a feeling of foreboding even on a clear day, when a cloud comes between us and the distant fire that lights and warms the world.

We are similarly sensitive to all the little troubles of our lives—to anything that disturbs our regularly ordered existence.

A temporary illness—a suspicion that there are some kind of business breakers ahead—these things plunge us into gloom.

And we, in our turn, pass the gloom along. For our friends seeing the black and foreboding faces that we wear, grow gloomy too.

One sullen-faced man in an office will sometimes spoil the day for the entire working force.

One croaker on board a ship in a storm may send the whole passenger list into something very like a panic.

Nobody loves a gloom man—but everybody listens to him—and looks at him.

The prophet of evil is never without an audience.

Poe, in his remarkable poem shows how the raven, by croaking the word "nevermore" was able to drive a luckless poet almost to the verge of insanity.

Continual gloom is not good for the soul any more than continual shadow would be good for the green and blossoming things upon the surface of the earth.

We all need sunshine and a great deal of it.

It is not necessary to go about continually telling people how happy we are. Like Pollyanna, but we can at least keep our trouble to ourselves, and not look as if we were limping along toward the grave or the gallows.

The gloomy man or woman in a home destroys the happiness of an entire family—and usually drives the children out on the streets, where at least there is air and sunshine, and maybe now and then a hardy-gurdy.

The reason the lark is popular, that the comic supplement sells by the million copies, and that the comedian gets a thousand dollars a week is because we will do anything to get rid of gloom.

It is a burden on life a menace to human happiness. If you are a gloom addict, change your mode of thought. You are as much of a menace to the community in which you move as was "Typhoid Mary" to hers.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

"YES" AND "NO"

THREE little words, yes and no, with which men have been wrestling for ages, are vocabularies of enormous meaning, capable of settling all the simple and complex problems in life when used with utmost wisdom and likewise with utmost caution.

In Washington, the statesmen who were debating and adjusting the question of limited armament found it difficult at times to apply "yes" and "no" to the interrogations which naturally arose in the discussion, and in which the whole world is vitally interested.

To see these monosyllables at the right time and in the proper place is the earnest wish of every fair-minded man or woman who would have "peace and good-will on earth."

But to do so in truth and mercy, when discussion is rife and righteousness seems to be rumbling noisily like mountains in an earthquake, requires the wisdom of Solomon and the patience of Job, accompanied with divine guidance.

How many lives of promising young men and women have been blighted by the indiscriminate playing of "yes" and "no"?

How many careers have gone to war through the utterance in anger of a ruthless "yes" when a complacent "no" authoritatively spoken, might have saved millions of precious lives, untold sorrows and incalculable treasure?

He or she who makes merry with these small words without giving thought to the immensity of their power to create or destroy, is risking everything in this life, and possibly in the life to come.

Though these words may seem but mere playthings in the world's vocabulary, they are really veritable giants, terrible in their wrath, but cheering, consoling and inspiring in their love.

It matters not how exalted or lowly you are, or whether you be rich or poor, strong or weak, you cannot at any time to your dealings with others afford to cushion up "yes" or "no" without first giving serious thought of what may likely follow.

In all circumstances it will be found advisable to use neither word until you are absolutely sure of your ground and know your own heart.

Do that in all sincerity and "yes" and "no" will be found faithful friends.

The opal shows its beautiful colors best when worn, and dealers aware of this peculiarity will hold an opal in the hand before showing it in order to imbue its changing hues and thereby to secure a higher price for it.

The Lights of a Great City

Suddenly a black thunder-shower rolls up over the city. Although it is mid-afternoon, lights are switched on in thousands of offices and homes until the towering city looks like an illuminated honeycomb. In many great cities huge Exide Storage Batteries in the central power stations are called on to supply current through the emergency. So powerful are these batteries, weighing hundreds of tons, that they can supply millions of candle power. Nearly all the central station batteries in America are Exides.

Exide Batteries are used in scores of ways—to supply the current for the vast network of telephone systems; to light trains; operate switches and fire alarms; to propel mine locomotives and trucks.

When you need a new battery for starting and lighting your automobile, the nearest service station can supply you with an Exide whose rugged power will add to your satisfaction in motoring and whose long life will prove a true economy.

GREAT BARE FACTS

THE Great Trees in the forest stood naked and bare, for Old Winter had come and taken away their beautiful colored dresses that Mistress Fall had given them in place of their pretty summer clothes.

But the evergreen trees were still dressed and they cried "Shame!" to the tall bare trees as they shivered in the winter winds.

At first the Great Trees did not notice the evergreens and held their poor naked heads high with pride above their green-gowned neighbors, but it was no use pretending, for, as the days went by, the evergreens became more and more scornful and at last the great trees had to acknowledge to each other that they were a sorry sight.

"It is no use looking for Summer," said one to another. "and Mistress Fall is too far away now to hear our call, and Old Winter has no pity in his cold, hard heart for us."

"We might ask the help of the Forest Goblins," said another tree. "They come out on moonlight nights before the snow comes and they may know of some one who will help us if they cannot."

"I cannot understand why the evergreens should be so disagreeable. They have never been so before," spoke up another tree.

"Why, I can tell you, brother," replied a very tall tree. "Those evergreens have just grown up and they are so proud that they can see more than they did last year that they are talking about everything they see."

The first moonlight night that the Forest Goblins appeared the Great Trees told them their troubles, and though the Goblins said they could not help them, they promised to see the Elves, whose queen was a friend of the Queen of the Fairies.

This seemed a round-about way to the Great Trees to get help, but there was nothing else to be done and so they had to wait.

The Great Trees had about given up hope and the evergreens grew more scornful every day, but one night, when all was still and the wind was cold and blustering, a little fairy alighted on the topmost branch of a great bare tree. She had ridden to the forest on the tail of Blustering Wind without his knowing a thing about it and as he passed along off she jumped.

"I have a message for you from my queen," she whispered to Great Tree. "The Fairy Queen will help you and she gives you her promise that soon you shall all outshine in splendor the evergreens that scorn you."

As Old Blustering Wind passed again the fairy caught at his trailing tail and off she went, but the Great Trees felt happier and they waited and watched.

Then one moonlight night, when the evergreens looked up at the great bare trees, their cries of "Shame!" froze before they left their branches. For instead of being naked and bare, the Great Trees were clothed in gorgeous splendor such as the evergreen had never beheld.

The Fairy Queen had sent the snow fairies and Jack Frost to dress the Great Trees. They wore diamonds and their long branches were powdered with sparkling frost, and there they stood like great kings dressed in white and silver.

The evergreens were certain that the next day, when the sun came out, the Great Trees would be naked again, but they were more wonderful in their splendor as the sunlight fell upon them.

And no more did the evergreens cry "Shame!" to the Great Trees, for all through the winter did the Fairy Queen keep them dressed in their sparkling clothes.

THE RIGHT THING at the RIGHT TIME

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

R. S. V. P.

Will thou not answer, man?—Shakespeare

FEW persons need to be told that the initials R. S. V. P. stand for the French, "Repondez s'il vous plait,"—that is, "reply if you please." But apparently there are a good many persons who do need to be told that when those initials are on an invitation it is imperative that either regrets or acceptances be sent within a day or two of the receipt of the invitation.

The fact that there are such people is quite obvious to any one who has sent out formal invitations with this formal request for an answer, for there are always plenty of invited guests who come without signifying their intention to do so and even more who remain away without sending their regrets. Some persons really seem to think that "it is all a matter of form." They receive an invitation to a large wedding reception, for instance, and notice the letters R. S. V. P. but as they are uncertain as to whether they really wish to go or will be able they delay sending a reply. "It is just a matter of form," they say. "In a big affair like that it doesn't make any difference. One cannot make more or less will not matter."

But it does most emphatically matter. The hostess who does much entertaining makes a practice of keeping lists of all invited guests and as replies come she checks them off so that she can tell how many persons to make plans for. As her orders ought to be in at the caterer's several days in advance of the entertainment, it is really essential that the replies should be sent in within a short time after receipt of the invitation.

Whether or not the letters are added to certain invitations, a reply should be sent; for instance, to an entertainment where substantial refreshments are to be served. Thus, a wedding reception or breakfast calls for a reply, as does, of course, a dinner or supper invitation. However, an invitation to a tea, where the refreshments do not have to be specially prepared for each guest, does not call for a reply. Good form in that case demands either your presence or a card sent so that it will reach the hostess on the day of the reception or tea.

There are times when it may not seem to you that a reply is necessary where for some reason or other your hostess really wishes one. It may be that she is sending out invitations to a drawing room reading or musical and that her seats are limited. She adds R. S. V. P. to the invitations because she wishes to know quite definitely how many to expect. If you refuse it may be that some one else may be invited. Not to answer and not to answer very promptly then would be a real rudeness.

There are some persons who protest against these letters R. S. V. P. They say that it is much better to use plain English and so they use this expression: "The favor of an answer is requested." This has the obvious advantage of being in English but the other form has the advantage of being extremely brief, and as every one knows the significance of the letters or can quite easily learn it, and as it is the time-honored form to use under the circumstances, there is no very good objection to its use.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

VIOLET

THE origin of the fragrant and poetic name of Violet is shrouded in mystery. The name Violante appeared in the south of France and north of Spain and Italy early in history, but there was no clue to its origin and apparently, like Topsy, "it just grew." Etymologists with a fanciful turn of mind have identified it with the lovely golden violet which was the prize of troubadours of old in the courts of love; other authorities believe that it may have been a form of some old Latin name such as Valentine. The Latin name for the little purple flower that lifts its modest head in the spring is "Viola."

Violante was popular as a feminine name in Spain, but France changed her to Yolande or Yolette. An old English form was Joletta. Scotland, however, reached out and appropriated the name, changing it to Violet. It is thought that this latest version came through a connection of the Archers of the Royal Guard, or perhaps through Queen Mary's friend, Violet Forbes. Certainly, the name spread in popularity in England and Scotland, where Violets were almost as numerous as the Mays of the Catholic communities of today.

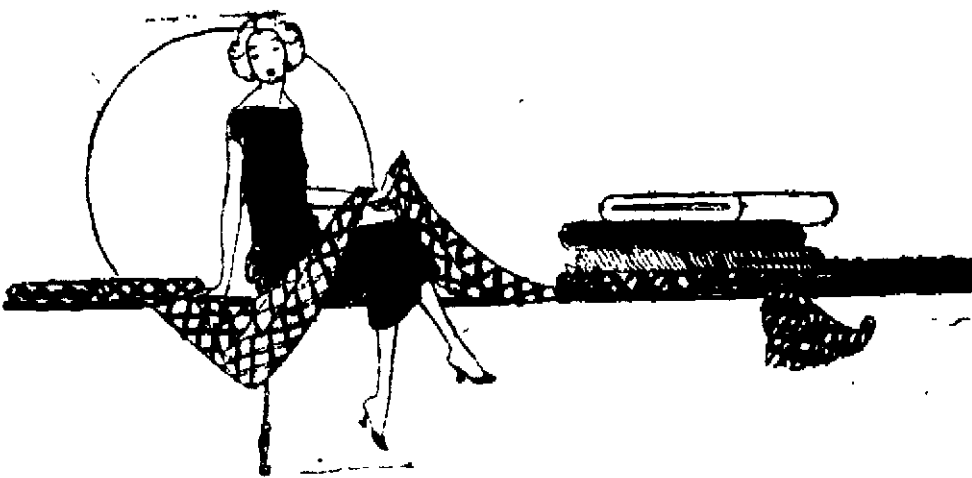

Perhaps the most famous Violet of history was LaViolette, the young dancer, so called by Maria Theresa, who became the wife of David Garrick, the brilliant English tragedian. Viola was the form preserved by Italy and it still reigns in undisputed popularity there. It gradually penetrated England and was elevated to favoritism through Shakespeare's lovely heroine of "A Winter's Tale."

Violet's flower is of course her fragrant and modest namesake, the violet. It signifies modesty. Her tallamantic gem is the bloodstone, which promises her bodily health, guards her from deception and distressing news, and preserves her faculties. If the stone is given to her by a lover, it will insure lasting and sincere devotion. Thursday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

Maidenly Caution.

"Oh, you, we are engaged to be married; but I fear she has not that utter confidence in me that comes with perfect love." "Why so?" "Well, when a fellow looks back and sees her looking the diamond in her engagement ring on the window pane, don't you think he has good cause to feel a bit dubious?"

Before Printing.

Before the art of printing all education was of necessity mainly oral; the scholar had to hang on the lips of his masters for whatever knowledge he expected to acquire in the college, academy or parish school; his only hope beyond this was the rare privilege of looking at a manuscript in some collegiate or monastic library.—Smithson.

Childish Frankness.

Charles, with his father and mother, was spending the day at the home of his grandparents. When he had finished his dinner he excused himself, as he wished to play with his toys. Upon being prompted to do so, "Thank you, grandpa," he seriously added, "Good dinner—and good supper, too, I hope."

Simply, Failure.

Lack of training, poor preparation, insufficient schooling, faulty outlook, snap judgment, narrow ideas—these are some of the phrases used to explain failure. They likewise are the chief reasons why so many men who hardly have failed in the active sense of the word yet must be classed among those who do not succeed.—C. N. Gibbey.

What He Would Do.

Being told by the deacon that his constant demands for money from the pulpit would kill his church, an old colored preacher replied, "Churches don't die that way, brother. You show me one that did an' I'll shoot with a voice of thunder, 'Blessed am the dead that die in the Lord!'"—Boston Transcript.

Ash Constituents of Food.

The function of the ash constituents of food is to build the bone, teeth, muscles, nerves and tissues; to enter into the composition of the living cell in every part of the body and regulate body processes.

Vote by Seniority.

In the election of a pope the cardinal vote in the order of their rank and age, the dean of the Sacred college being the first to cast his ballot.

An Oversight.

He—"When I married you I had boundless education for you—I could fairly have devoured you! Now I regret that I didn't do it."—Loquacious.

CIRCUS DREAM

"I have a hole in my toe," said the first slipper.

"So have I," said the second slipper.

"Shows we're well enough to be out," said the first slipper.

"That is what it shows," said the second slipper.

"We belong to Bookie," said the first slipper.

"We do," said the second slipper.

"And she loves us even if we are wearing out. She has a better pair of slippers, but she loves us best," the first slipper said.

"We're going to be mended later on," the second slipper added.

"By the way," said the first slipper, "I shouldn't have said that the holes showed we were well enough to be out. I should have said that when Bookie wears us the people say,

"Well, Bookie, so your toes are well enough to be out." For the toes show right through us."

"That's what they do," said the second slipper.

"We have shown the toes were well, though Bookie has been sick, hasn't she?" asked the first slipper.

"Yes," said the second slipper.

"You know we're by a hospital bed. That is why Bookie loves us so, I believe, and why we aren't to be mended until after Bookie leaves the hospital."

"For she says she loves to hear that her toes are well enough to be out when she is sitting in her chair, and she hopes she, herself, will be well soon."

The slippers were quiet then and after a time along came the Dreamland King and sat upon the end of Bookie's bed.

"You couldn't come to me and so I came to you," said the Dreamland King.

"I know that all of you children have been dreaming of the circus which has come to this big town now."

"You are wondering how you will be able to get there because you know

"So I Came."

that you're not to leave the hospital for a little while yet, and you don't know whether you will miss the circus or not.

"You are very much afraid it will have left town by the time you leave the hospital."

"But I've come to tell you something. The circus is coming to the hospital, and this dream is going to come true."

"The clowns and the beautiful ladies, the bearers and the elephants will come. The old callopie will play."

"They will all come in their very best costumes, too."

"And all of the children will be moved near the windows and on the piazzas of the courtyard where there will be a circus for the sick children."

"Ah, yes, Bookie, you are going to see the circus. For you have heard, perhaps, or perhaps not, of the little boy Jay Rial?"

"He was the one who loved the circus so when he was a boy that he said if ever he became rich he would see that just as many boys and girls saw the circus as he could possibly arrange to have see it."

"Well, he became a part of the business management of the circus. The Dreamland King doesn't know much about business management, but it is most important. Jay Rial tells the people in advance when the circus is coming to town, and he tells the newspaper people to write in their newspapers of all the new things in the circus."

"But he hasn't forgotten that he always said he wanted just as many boys and girls as possible to see the circus. He hasn't forgotten. So many forget what they plan to do when they grow big, but Jay Rial didn't forget. He will never forget."

"He has the kind of a heart which the Dreamland King calls the Thoughtful Heart."

"And he has asked the clowns and some of the other performers and the animals to give a circus for you hospital children who can't come to the circus yourselves."

"See if this dream isn't going to come true?"

Bookie woke up, and everyone in the hospital ward was talking.

"The dream is coming to the hospital," they cried out to her when they saw that she was awake.

"My dream will come true," said Bookie.

River's Peculiar Movement.

The Colville, the largest Alaskan river emptying into the Arctic ocean, for much of its course lies higher than one side of its own valley, and is gradually sliding down hill, writes Robert F. Wilson, in St. Nicholas. The river flows north parallel to an eastern range of hills and actually part way up the slope of the hills, so that if the stream's western bank were cut, the water would abandon the present bed and flow down into the bottom of the valley. The western side of the river is deep, where the current is eating into the bank year after year, but the eastern side shallows out into a broad, stony beach, which shows by its great width how far the river has already traveled sideways. The explanation of the Colville's eccentric conduct is that after it formed its bed and valley, as a normally behaved river does, there was a later contraction of the earth's crust, lifting the stream bodily part way up the side of the slope. Ever since then the river has been trying to get down to its old level again.

Theories of the Formation of Oil.—That petroleum is of organic origin, is the opinion of the majority of geologists. The point to its persistent occurrence in sedimentary rocks, but as to whether it has been derived from animals or plants, and, if the latter, whether from marine or land forms, they are undecided. Moreover, the exact details of the process by which organic matter has been converted into oil and gas are somewhat obscure. As opposed to the organic theory is the inorganic one, which assumes that the oil and gas may be hydrocarbons, formed at great depths by the action of stress on metallic carbon—a process that can be demonstrated experimentally, but which is not borne out by field evidence. Another inorganic theory having gay adherents but connected to by few geologists, is that the hydrocarbons of oil and gas are volcanic exhalations.

BLAMES WOMAN'S GREED

For Crimes Men Commit to Get Money.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, March 15.—Modern woman's greed for furs and jewels is leading men astray, County Judge Louis D. Gibbs declared today when he gave a suspended sentence to Saul Zukor, charged with having received stolen goods.

Mrs. Zukor was in court, clad in furs and diamonds.

"Modern women, or a might say, the majority of them, are using the dollar mark to steer their husbands into crime in these days of furs and diamonds," declared the judge.

"Wives and daughters don't stop to ask their husbands or fathers where the dirty dollar comes from. Furthermore it makes no difference to them."

A 20th Century Proposal

By KETURAH VAN TYLE

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"You're the prize simplest," exclaimed Ben Marshall, laughing derisively, at the same time removing a portion of the ring from his statement by an affectionate slap on his friend's shoulder. "Here you are, head over heels in love with one of the nicest girls that ever grew, reasonably sure she doesn't dislike you, got a good job, yet you let a slicker like Wallie Ebers walk off with the plum before your very face and eyes!"

"He hasn't walked off with her yet," returned Olive Oliver with something resembling a growl.

"No fault of yours he hasn't, and if you'd seen him last night after you left the party, I guess you'd say there was need for speed!"

"It takes a pile of nerve for a duffer like me to ask for anything as wonderful as Annette. Ben, why—the thought of what I was daring to do would choke me on the first word!"

"It's a good thing you aren't all shrieking violets like you, or marriages would be made in heaven! I'd write it out and then practice saying it till I got over being 'old-man-afraid-of-his-voice'!"

After Marshall left Oliver sat thinking over their conversation. He had loved Annette Keating ever since their first meeting. He always was eager to perform service for her, but when it came to asking favors, especially so tremendous a thing as giving himself in marriage, he never had been able to summon sufficient courage. Ben's suggestion that he write out his proposal and practice saying it had generated the first twinges of courage he had felt in many a day. Not a bad idea, that.

He was aroused from his reverie by the sound of familiar voices, and going to the window was hailed by two associates. "We're planning a dance for Friday night, Olive. Want to come?"

With his new-found courage still tingling in his consciousness he answered in the affirmative, at once formulating in his mind an invitation to Annette.

"Oh, Olive! I—I'm so sorry!" answered the girl—with a catch in her

Made Sure Buddy Was Still Asleep.

voice, when Olive telephoned his invitation a little later. "I've just promised Wallie Ebers and I can't break a promise!"

"I suppose not, but Ebers must have been sitting on your front step when the boys planned the party, to have asked you so soon!"

"Olive Oliver, that's the first time I ever knew you to be hateful!"

"Forgive me—it was childish—it won't happen again. Save me some dances, anyway."

Olive left the telephone quite unacquainted with himself. Instead of his customary self-depreciation, he was filled with a new determination to make Annette his own, and Ben was right—there was need for speed.

Annette did not go to the dance with Wallie Ebers. On Friday morning her six-year-old brother Buddie broke out with measles, and was so cross no one but his sister seemed able to quiet him. For more than a week Annette was his constant attendant, and finally, when he was convalescing, but still confined to a carefully shaded room, he began to long for the outside world a bit.

"Sit!" he exclaimed. "How I wish you had a photograph like Oliver's! Wouldn't it be fun to have some jolly stuff while I'm getting well?"

"Why, Buddie! If you like it, I'll phone Mrs. Oliver and ask her to let Olive bring theirs over for a while after supper."

It was but a short time after that the groceryman delivered the Oliver photograph at the Keating back door, with the message that Buddie might as well be enjoying it the remainder of the day, instead of waiting for Olive to bring it over. If a shadow of disappointment flickered across Annette's lovely face, it was instantly banished by Buddie's cry of joy.

"Begin at the top shelf, sis, and play 'em all the way down!" demanded the delighted child.

When every shelf but one had been emptied, Buddie was fast asleep, but there being but one record left on the bottom shelf, Annette decided to play it, mere from idle curiosity than because she really cared to hear any more. There was no title on the record. As she listened a voice began to speak—a masculine voice, which seemed strangely familiar—it was addressing her.

"Annette," said the voice. "I've waited for more than a year to tell you how much I care for you, but it has seemed such a big thing to ask you to marry me, I've never dared do it till now. Will you?"

The bewildered girl shut off the power, wrapped the record in a fold of her shirt, made sure Buddie was still asleep, and flew to her room, where understanding finally penetrated.

A little later a customer who seemed to be laboring under some suppressed excitement called at the Talking Machine Shop in Main street, asked for Ben Marshall, and when that customer was at liberty retired with him to one of the booths where records are tried.

That same afternoon Olive Oliver was sent to a neighboring town on business for his firm. Returning the following evening at supper time, his very first act after entering the front door was to lock himself in a little den off the library. In another moment he was out again, flying to the kitchen, where he grabbed his astonished mother by the shoulders.

"Mother!" he gasped. "Where's the photograph?"

"In the front hall behind the door. Yesterday."

Just then a neighbor called Mrs. Oliver to the rear fence, and during her absence Olive wheeled the talking machine into the den. When the door was safely locked once more he opened the cabinet with a hand that almost trembled and felt on the bottom shelf.

"Thank goodness—it's safe," he muttered, and placed it in the machine.

"Olive, dear," the machine ground out in a feminine voice which was unmistakably Annette's. "I've been waiting for you to ask me to marry you almost as long as you've been getting up courage to do it. Don't you want to come over and get your answer?"

With a whoop which might have been the pride of a Comanche, he bounded down the stairs, sought his mother, and demanded to know who had last used the photograph.

"I sent it over to Keating's yesterday by the grocery man. Buddie was reckless and wanted some quack. They just brought it back."

HERE'S MATERIAL FOR STORY

Series of Incidents Going Far to Prove That "Truth is Stranger Than Fiction."

A prominent downtown lawyer met an old friend of his recently who was returning to Shanghai, China, where he has an export business. The latter, knowing the lawyer's interest in all things human, especially if it has any Celtic connection, told of the big six-foot-four Irish chief of police in Shanghai, whose power over Chinese mobs was almost as great as that of their oldest gods. A few months later that same Irish chief of police, on leave to visit his home in Tipperary, stopped in New York and spent several days with the lawyer, to whom he had been referred by the business man. Two months later an Irish girl, just two days in New York, walked into the lawyer's office seeking a position as stenographer, with a letter of introduction from the chief of police, who lived in her home town in Tipperary. The lawyer had no vacancy at the time, but three weeks later he advertised for a stenographer. One of those who answered the ad was the Irish girl, who had tramped the streets in vain in a search for a job. All of which is merely set down here so that some future Richard Harding Davis may see it.—New York Evening Post.

Level's Thorny Path.
I was the unlucky age of thirteen when a boy in my class asked me to accompany him to the movies one evening. The movie show at that time cost the vast sum of a nickel. Imagine my embarrassment when my beau called my father to one side and asked him for the loan of five cents, with which to take me to the show, as his mother had only given him the price of one ticket. He got the nickel and we went to the show and, becoming greatly interested in the pictures, we stayed for the second show, therefore getting out at the late hour of eleven. Outside we found both our mothers waiting for us and both of us were taken home promptly.

Judging by Feet.
At school we have a small stage equipped with a curtain. One morning this was dropped and my chum stood in front of it. We were working on the scenery behind the curtain, and as each boy came near, my chum would playfully land a swat on the unseen victim. He could see the feet below. Beholding a good-sized pair approaching, he concluded it was I. He accordingly put a lot of extra steam into the blow, accompanying it with a suitable remark. Rut, alas and alack! he was frozen with horror to discover it was the principal whom he had thus accosted.—Chicago Tribune.

Escapade Proved Joke.
One day when I was seventeen years old I was walking home from town, where I had been to school to take an examination. It was getting dusk and when a car with the side curtains on stopped and the man driving it asked me to ride I refused, because I did not know who it was. The man, who wore his cap pulled down over his face, caught me and pulled me into the car. Imagine my relief to find he was one of my best friends, playing a little joke on me.—Chicago Journal.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 15.—Two of the Walton bills aimed at theft of automobiles and their use in the commission of crime, passed the senate today without opposition. One requires that the purchaser of a used car must ascertain if the person selling it is the record owner, the other makes the unauthorized use of automobiles a crime.

K. H. S. MIDGETS TRIM STUDENT A

The K. H. S. Midgets continued their winning streak in a closely contested match at the "Y" Tuesday afternoon by the score of 23-15. They played the Student A team.

At the end of the first half the Student "A" boys were decidedly in the van with the tally 15-6. Then the Woodard aggregation "have-to" and the second period was a fight clean through. Stumpf and Dederick made the big clean-ups for the Midgets with six points and nine respectively. Scheffel ranked next with two points, five of the points being his usual quota of foul baskets. Mr. Woodard put all of the Midgets squared in the line-up and he was tickled immensely at the outcome.

As for the Student "A" lads the game was a round of substitutions, with every member of the team getting his chance. Mr. Begg has no reason to feel chagrined at the defeat, for if the exhibition is the same when the team journeys to Poughkeepsie "we win." Brown, Bennett and Clarke were continually at the process of registering, and Stanley Bennett's "Bugs Corner" was his corner on the foul shooting market; he made seven complimentary baskets.

The game with the Ellenville Midgets is pending for Friday and Manager Brown stated that the engagement rests entirely in the hands of the Ellenville authorities.

Mr. Woodard would like nothing more than to play the Ellenville Varsity on the local court this season. The local varsity is putting in a hard lot of tricks this week in view of Saturday's game with Newburgh Academy at Newburgh, as the game will be the deciding factor in the entry of K. H. S. at the Syracuse University tourney, for the state championship.

Miss Seiner is also working her charge in no light manner for the next contest that the girls' Varsity will hold and some shifting is being made in the regular line-up which is necessary.

Of Course, He Must Have Been!

A gambler named George used to visit a Chinaman's place and smoke opium almost daily. One day he rushed in and said excitedly: "Hip, lean me $10. Thanks, I'll come in with it tomorrow noon, if I am alive!" And about three weeks with the money. About three o'clock the next afternoon a friend of the gambler dropped in on the Chinaman and said: "Hip, where is George today?" The confiding Oriental wiped his eyes with the corner of his blouse and replied: "George, hip, lean me $10."

CLASS QUINTETS GET GAME EACH

The Seniors and the Freshmen boys have had two set-to's thus far this week and split even.

Monday the game was a hot and bloody affair. First the Seniors would be in the lead and then the Freshmen, but the question about the whole affair is whether it was only a Levy-Kanzer match, for they scored respectively 11 and 14 points. Captain Muller of the Seniors injured his foot in the game and the injury was so severe that he was kept from attending school Tuesday and consequently he did not play in the second match. The Tuesday game was different altogether from Monday's because the Seniors were greatly maddened at the defeat they suffered from the first season kids and consequently won by the deciding tally of 24-16.

Human flesh is heir to many ailments, but aside from the acute and the contagious diseases, most people become sickly from neglect. They have indigestion and do nothing for it. They get nervous and often sleep poorly and do nothing to cure themselves. From these and other causes they gradually lose strength and vitality and feel tired much of the time and often "blue" and despondent. If you feel below par take Gude's Pepto-Mangan and let it restore your strength and vitality and overcome that weakness by building up your blood to the right richness and redness. Then you will feel fine and vigorous again, and have plenty of "pep." For thirty years Gude's Pepto-Mangan has been the doctor's favorite tonic for run-down people. ## DON'T LET INCOMPETENT "HANDY-MEN" DO YOUR PLUMBING JOB.

The following clipping from a Des Moines newspaper typically tells what can often happen when a so-called "handy-man" attempts to do the plumber's work.

OUR PLUMBERS MAY FACE CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Des Moines, Nov. 12.

A Des Moines man who attempted to do a plumbing job without a plumbing permit last night was charged with the death of Mrs. L. H. Huffman, who died from asphyxiation in a room back of a small store. It is claimed that the two men had run gas pipes through this room in order to connect with a room above. Relatives of Mrs. Huffman claim these men were not plumbers and that they used old, rusty pipe which was not gas proof. They have employed Attorney Volney Ditt to press the charge.

4,000,000 PEOPLE

Annually use organic Nuxated Iron to build up red blood, strength and endurance.

There are thousands of people who are aging and breaking down the lines of life as they should be enjoying that perfect health which comes from the condition of their blood. Without organic iron your blood carries no oxygen, and without oxygen there is nothing to stir with the current in your body as when you eat down you are good. It is like getting coal into a stove without fire. You can now obtain organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lettuce, and apples from any drug store under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron also contains the principal chemical constituent of active, living nerve force. It is, therefore, a true blood and nerve food. It builds up and rebuilds new and stronger red blood cells. It feeds the body the substance which nerve force must have to give it that vital, electric power which is stored in the nerve and brain cells of man. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown men and women in two weeks time. The manufacturers guarantee successful results to every purchaser or they will refund your money.

BYDE SNYDER IN A WONDER COUNTRY

Where Crops Come Up Like Magic Without Rain; Where There's No Illness and Death Is Nearly to Pre-War Level—AM With a Bunch of U. S. A.

The following interesting descriptive letter was received Wednesday, by Mrs. Emerson J. Lake of 148 Fair street, from her brother, Byde Snyder of Woodstock, who has spent two or three summers in this city. As will be seen by the letter Mr. Snyder gets the semi-weekly Freeman which he reads even to the cent-a-word advertisements.

Rio Hondo, Tex., Feb. 20, 1922.

Dear Sister: I have been going to write you about this wonderful country for some time and here it is almost March and time I get at it. We left New York the day before Christmas. Had a fine voyage all the way down. When we reached the Florida coast we steamed for over two hours about a mile off shore. We got a fine view of the hotels and cottages at Palm Beach. We were hardly out of sight of land until we passed Miami and the Keys and started across the gulf. We were about ninety miles from the coast of Cuba. Did not stop at Key West this time but kept right on to Port Eads at the mouth of the Mississippi. You could tell by the color of the water that we were nearing the river long before we could see land.

We stopped long enough to pick up the pilot from a small boat.

New Orleans lies 110 miles up the river. For a long way up the land seemed to be almost on a level with the water. I don't know how many mouths the river has. The land runs far out like the fingers on a hand. The steamers go up through the South Pass that was built by Eads. It is a great piece of engineering. There are a number of fishing villages on the narrow strips of land between the mouths. The houses are all on poles. We passed a small school house and the wash from the ship seemed to go right under it. I'll bet the children know how to swim. All around us were great flocks of duck and other water fowl. Some place to fish and hunt. There were a number of cows on the narrow strips. They take them to pasture on scows.

The old French quarter of New Orleans is very interesting. We took the train to Houston, about 350 miles. When the train crosses the river they run the whole thing on a big boat and push it across with tugs. We passed through southern Louisiana, this time by daylight. It may be a very beautiful country, but as seen from the car windows it is rather dismal and depressing, just one swamp after another. Miserable little dilapidated huts with the water all around them and a boat tied to the front door steps. The quaint, forlorn looking cypress trees with their roots high above the water and festooned with the dreary, gray Spanish moss. Soon the country began to look better and we could see the Ford's skipping along the roads. We passed Lake Charles where the great sulphur mines are. Then for miles through immense rice fields and sugar plantations. I counted more than twenty big rice flour mills. All around Beaumont and for miles around the country is studded with oil derricks and tanks. Houston is a big bustling city. We stayed there over night and all the next day and then took train for San Benito.

We are about 750 miles down the coast from New Orleans. The Gulf of Mexico lies just a little way east of us and the mouth of the Rio Grande about twenty miles south. We found everything all right. The citrus trees have made a wonderful growth. They were only set out two years ago and one of the lemons has been bearing some time and several of the grape fruit and orange trees are loaded with blossoms. The lemon trees bear all the time but the orange and grape fruit have a season. They only ship oranges that are bright colored and in nearly every orchard there is lots of fruit that is of a more or less brown color. Although they are very sweet and juicy, fully as good as the bright colored ones, they cannot ship them as the people in the north buy oranges for the looks and not for the goodness. You can buy these brown ones for two dollars a bushel.

In a very short time the Lower Valley of the Rio Grande will rival Southern California and Florida in citrus fruits. We can raise the finest grape fruit in the world. Our Spanish duggers and palms are growing like weeds and when the figs, bananas and olives get larger the place will look real tropical. The castor oil plant grows into regular trees. It spreads all around, in two or three years it is like a jungle. We set out four century plants two years ago and they are bigger than sugar barrels and more than twenty little ones are coming up. The canna's are spreading so that we have to chop them down. The Spanish dagger has a beautiful bunch of flowers as big as a nail keg.

I see you have had some cold weather. We get the "Freeman" twice a week and read it all even to the cent a word advertisements. We had a week of cool cloudy weather in January. We almost had a frost but it did no damage. They got it bad in Southern California and Florida. For three or four nights it was cool enough to have a fire. We have a big fireplace and after we get a good fire started we roll on a big chunk of ebony or mesquite and it keeps fire all night. Those four cool nights were all the winter we have had. Very few of the Mexican families have any stoves at all. They do all their cooking outside. The farmers have been wishing for cool weather, as it is so hot and dry that lettuce and cabbage do not do so well. They shipped 500 carloads of cabbage and forty cars of mixed vegetables in January from San Benito. You can plant a garden any month in the year except in the summer and some things will grow in the summer if you plant corn between the rows for shade. We have a garden near the house and the strawberries that were set out late in November were ready to pick in February. We have lots of peas, beans, corn, tomatoes and every garden vegetable. There is no market for vegetables in the summer. Corn and cotton are the summer crops. Our nearest market at present is Houston, 350 miles north.

Cabbage has dropped from fifty dollars a ton to four dollars and they have stopped buying. Hundreds of tons are going to waste. Lettuce, eggplant and tomatoes do not bring enough to pay to ship them. One of our neighbors has half an acre of the finest egg plant I ever saw. There must be thousands of them but they will never be picked. On the south side of us is a quarter of an acre of beautiful tomatoes. I don't know how many hundred bushels of them, but it is a sight to see. Every one will be left to rot on the vine. If the cotton and corn don't bring a good price I don't know what the farmers will do. It costs so much for seed and water and then to raise a big crop and lose it is tough luck. Of course there are different crops coming on all the time. As fast as one crop is gathered another is put in. Peppers are bringing a good price but the weevils are in them and they are falling off. After the peppers are picked, the plants are left and in three years they grow into stubby little trees.

I wish you could see the birds, so many different kinds and such brilliant plumage, mocking birds, doves and pigeons. There is a flock of bright red birds in the yard now. Some are bright scarlet and some are mixed with slate and black. There are two or three kinds of black birds. Some of them are quite large with very long tail feathers and a spot of scarlet on neck and wings.

The country looks like a great green garden, something like the Kingston flats in June. So many different shades of green, from the dark leaves of the ebony and orange to the light of the wild fig and mesquite. Acres and acres of cabbage, onions, lettuce, beans, etc. About a mile from us in the older section is a road about half a mile long that has a beautiful row of tall palms on both sides. We have four or five kinds of palm here. There is a canal every half mile. The land is all divided in 40 acre farms. Most of the sections are cleared but lots of it is still a jungle of cactus and mesquite. The people in this part are nearly all northern people from west of the Mississippi. This rich soil will grow almost anything. The farmers never use fertilizers.

It is hard to realize that only ten or twelve years ago this whole country was a howling wilderness. Some of it howls considerably worse. Nature gave it a rich deep soil like the valley of the Nile in Egypt, and left out water. Some years it never rains at all in eight months. When it does rain it pours for days and the river gets out of its bed and wanders all over the country. Just now the Rio Grande is lower than it has been in years. It shows on the gauge 20 feet below flood level.

This valley is 75 miles long by about 25 miles wide and every bit has to be watered by the canals and they have to be kept full by immense steam pumps constantly drawing millions of gallons of water from the river. You could not live half a mile from a canal. If the river should ever fail no one could live here. There are no springs, brooks or wells. Our village is called Rio Hondo, which is Spanish for deep river. The river is only an arm of the gulf and the water is salt. The Rio Grande isn't a broad, deep river like the Hudson. It can be forded in lots of places. About a thousand miles long if it could be straightened out. It is just as crooked as it possibly can be and seems to be always changing its course. Sometimes it takes a few thousand acres away from Texas and gives it to Mexico and then it will cut a big slice of Mexico off and make prohibition territory out of it. The country is developing so fast that the canals can hardly take care of it. Twelve years ago San Benito, Harlingen, Pharr, Mission and half a dozen other places were unknown. Now they are little bustling cities and growing every minute. I have not heard of a single case of sickness since we have been down. Nobody ever seems to have a cold and grip and rheumatism are unknown. You never hear anybody speak about having a cold. Boats running across the river are rapidly developing into quite an industry. The Rio Grande is well adapted for smuggling. There are hundreds of places where it can be easily slipped across and it comes in a steady stream. They catch some of the big ones that send it over wholesale but the little fellows swarm over like flies. There is so much of it that the price has dropped almost to pre-war level. Tequila, Mesquite and several other kinds are for sale. Tequila is made from the juice of the century plant. It looks like water and has a kick like a cannon. I am afraid the poor Mexicans won't have anything left for themselves. Metamoros lies just across the river from Brownsville and is crowded every Sunday with Americans. They had a reform wave over there and ordered the saloons to close for one hour Sunday afternoon. The hour is from 1 to 2 p. m., and as most of them take a nap about that time it doesn't work much hardship. They have changed the clocks in Mexico. The hours go now from one to twenty-four. Nobody seems to know how it will make it any better but they have reformers over there same as we and they couldn't do anything with prohibition, short skirts or bobbed hair so they took it out on the clocks. Well, it's time I stop.

BYDE.

MRS. BERGMAN'S CHECK MISSING

So is George Weydel When He Took To Cash It—John Crook Follows To Have Accompanied Him To New York.

A Mrs. Bergmann of High Falls on Tuesday morning sent George Weydel who was employed by her at Stone Ridge with a check for $12.00 to pay a bill owing Louis Sahler at the latter place. Weydel left in one horse rig accompanied by a young man named John Crook about 8.30 o'clock.

Not returning after dinner Mrs. Bergmann called up Mr. Sahler and inquired if Weydel had been at his place with the check. She was informed that he had driven there to the front of the store early in the morning and that Weydel had been out of the wagon with Crook, that they had taken off their overalls and went away leaving the rig in front of the store where it still was.

Mrs. Bergmann then got a man named Beach to call up the Sheriff's office about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and under Sheriff Tunis Haulenbeck was told by Mrs. Bergmann of the going away of Weydel. By use of the telephone and inquiring along the route Mr. Haulenbeck learned of the two men being seen by different persons on the highway leading to Kingston and he then called up police headquarters and Sergeant Pharr started with Under Sheriff Haulenbeck to get information as to whether Weydel and Crook had been seen in this city.

It was learned that just before the 11.55 train, Tuesday morning, was leaving the West Shore station a man answering the description of Weydel rushed to the ticket office and purchased two tickets for New York city, there being another man standing behind him at the time who answered the description of Crook. Weydel is about 20 years of age, 5 feet, 6 inches in height, has a red face scarred by burns, wore a brown cap and wore a gray overcoat of light weight. It is said his home is somewhere in New Jersey. Crook whose home is back of Stone Ridge is 19 years of age.

Keep your blouses fresh and new, says Max Held—wash them this way

MAX HELD, INC. MAKERS OF FORTYTHE WAISTS New York

Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Once in a while a blouse is returned to us as unsatisfactory. We are sure of the material we use in making our blouses and we are sure of our workmanship. What we are not sure of is the treatment the blouse gets after it is in the hands of the owner.

If women would wash their blouses with Lux, 90 per cent of our complaints would disappear.

Frayed, pulled threads do not always mean a poor quality of silk, but a blouse that has been rubbed to get it clean. The thick Lux lather makes rubbing unnecessary.

The other day a crepe de Chine blouse was returned to us which had "gone" under the arm. The owner had put away the blouse which was badly soiled with perspiration. The perspiration acids had eaten the silk, and a harsh soap and rubbing completed the destruction. If that blouse had been washed with Lux as soon as it was soiled, we would not have had the complaint.

For our own protection, we recommend the use of Lux in washing silks.

Very truly yours, MAX HELD, INC. MAKERS OF FORTYTHE WAISTS

INTERMYER ARRIVES.

In Try And Save Some Of Lockwood Bills.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, March 15.—Samuel Undermyer, chief counsel of the Lockwood housing committee, arrived here today to continue the fight to save the important housing bills which are in serious danger of defeat.

He conferred with Francis R. Boddard, state superintendent of insurance on the insurance rate making bill. There are wide differences between them on this and other housing measures.

The housing situation has not changed, and it is doubtful if Mr. Undermyer's presence will have any effect on the attitude of the legislature.

As the situation now stands, the state trade commission, rate making insurance and compulsory investment bills are dead.

The fourth of the five emergency rent bills passed the senate this morning. It provides that where rent has been paid for three months a monthly payment, the defense of unreasonableness is not available. The fifth bill has been amended, and may be passed tonight.

AN UNFORTUNATE MOTHER.

Londoners Go to Bed Early. How early we go to bed in London is shown by a census of underground passengers. The last trains in various directions carried respectively 45, 38, 19 and 25 passengers. So hard are our war habits to cast off. But, indeed, 10 o'clock was bedtime for a multitude of Londoners even before the war, and in that multitude were, and are, quite a number of prominent business men. Your professional man seems to sit up later, and fashion, naturally, rarely retires till dawn.—London Times Weekly.

Cold Storage Leaves.

Eggs and beets are not the only things that are kept in cold storage. The fresh fern leaves that adorn the luncheon tables of hotels on occasion are probably from some ice chest and are taken out as demanded. They grow, very likely, in some woods near a country village and were shipped by the ton during the summer months. It is said New York city uses 15,000,000 fern fronds every year and some New England woods have been denuded of the plants.

DOING THINGS RIGHT

"OH, IT'LL DO!"

How many times do you suppose you have heard this sentence spoken by those who should know better? How often have you said the same thing yourself when you knew that you'd never be entirely satisfied when you announced your half-hearted work?

Things are either right or they're wrong. There can't be any half-way ground if one wishes to enjoy to the fullest his own handiwork or the happiness of knowing that he has done a valuable service for mankind. Whenever a person quits laboring at anything before the job is entirely satisfactorily finished, there is certain to follow disappointment and a sense of resentment against one's own carelessness. And whenever one in authority orders the work done by others by saying that "it'll do," neither he nor those engaged on the job will ever be pleased as greatly as if the task had been perfectly done.

One of the chief reasons why many go through life unhappy and complain of their rough pathways, is the inclination they display by aiming too often for "what'll do" rather than aiming constantly for the very best.

Fortunately there is a growing tendency to demand perfect goods and perfect work. There has been entirely too much imperfection in both finished materials and in the way this is done. But, perhaps, after all this has been a good thing. If it has caused an awakening to a sense of the importance of absolute perfection, the difficulties the world has experienced may prove only a small price to pay for better things.

No one can ever get the greatest possible enjoyment from the things he is doing if he is doing them half-heartedly; nor will he be inclined to do the best work when he is in that state of mind. It is, therefore, essential to one's happiness that he either work toward perfection in what he is doing, or else engage himself in something more to his liking which he can be sure to do well.

WHY?

ARE LEAD-PENCILS SO CALLED

THE obvious answer to this question would be, "Because they have lead in them." But they haven't. The writing material in the "lead-pencil" of today is graphite, not lead. But there was a time, before the discovery of the famous graphite mine in Cumberland, England, when metallic lead was used inside a wooden holder or sheath, and the name persisted even after the lead itself disappeared.

After large deposits of graphite were located in England in 1565, that country had practically a complete monopoly of the lead-pencil industry for some 200 years. In fact, it was not until 1781, when Casper Faber opened his pencil factory at Nuremberg, in Bavaria, that Germany took the lead in the making of this product. The establishment of the tariff which went into effect in 1881 made the importation of lead-pencils into the United States a very expensive operation and forced a number of manufacturers to establish plants in this country. American inventive genius perfected many of the machines which make the pencils and today the United States supplies at least 90 per cent of the pencils used on this side of the Atlantic and a considerable proportion of those which are utilized by the world at large. The graphite comes principally from Ceylon, Mexico, Romania and Siberia, while the red cedar wood is obtained from Florida, Alabama and Tennessee.

Mother's Cook Book

Spice of the clouds that hide the sunset glow. I do not trust; I know!

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

AN OLD fashioned cookie that even the grouse will ask for is: Meadow Inn Cookies.

Work one cupful of shortening into one cupful of sugar, then add one cupful of molasses, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, two teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in one tablespoonful of sour milk, and three tablespoonfuls of cold coffee. Add one well beaten egg, mix and sift three cupfuls of flour with one teaspoonful each of salt and ginger. Mix all together and let stand overnight. In the morning roll to one-fourth inch in thickness. Sprinkle with sugar and cut with a cookie cutter dipped in flour. Bake in a moderate oven.

Pasadena Place.

Roll out plain paste to one-fourth of an inch in thickness and cut in four-inch squares. Place a canned apricot drained from the syrup in the center of each square. Bring the pastry together at the corners, turn the points back and pinch to form a box base. Place on baking sheet and bake until delicately browned. Two minutes before removing from the oven top with a marshmallow.

Stews.

Into a large pot put one large fowl or a rabbit, neatly jointed, cover with two quarts of water, add three sliced onions, one and one-half pints of lima beans or less, if the family is small; a pint of tomatoes with salt and pepper to taste. Cook slowly until the meat is tender, add a can of corn and some hot boiled potatoes. Serve from the casserole.

The Girl Jim Took to the Game

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Jim Crawford fingered the oblong bits of cardboard reflectively. His tickets had safely arrived and, thank heaven and the ticket office, his seats were as good as any ever allotted to newly fledged graduates under the strain of unprecedented demands. That part of it was "all to the mustard."

Only—whom to take? With Jim the choice was not a narrow one. Yet gradually it slimmered down to two, Caroline Hemmings or Peggy Curtis, both lively girls—and fair. For Jim could not visualize himself as escorting to that colorful spectacle any but a pretty girl. To choose, then, either Caroline's dusky attractiveness or Peggy's winsome blondness?

"I've got it!" said Jim. "I'll toss up their telephone numbers and abide by fate. Come seven!"

A moment later he snapped the receiver back on its hook. "It was ever so nice of him, thank you, but Caroline had already planned to go with somebody else!"

Now for Peggy.

If Peggy's soft voice over the telephone carried with it a bit more of a thrill than had Catherine's, Jim was scarcely aware of the fact as her words struck gradual dismay to his soul.

"The game? Oh, Jim, I'd love to, but Blaine Ashley asked me ages ago. But Jim, I've got a simply tremendous favor to ask you. Had you any one else in mind? No? How splendid! You see, my cousin is here from Milldale, and just dying to see the game. But you know how it is about tickets. And—oh, Jim, if you would take her! She's awfully bright and—did you say, 'Is she pretty?' Why—oh, Central, you've cut us off!"

An ultimate reconnection and Jim, wondering why on earth he had done it, presently found himself pledged to take Peggy's Milldale cousin to the season's greatest contest.

Early in the afternoon on the day of the game, Jim drove his modest little roadster up to the curb in front of Peggy's home. Yes, there stood the girls on the veranda. Beside

HEXATHLON AT Y. M. C. A. SOON

Last Big Athletic Event of Indoor Season Starts March 22—Open to All "Y" Boys.

Soon Old Man Winter and his athletic sports will take the air in order to give way for the outdoor diversions and as a last whack at the indoor sports the annual Hexathlon championship contests are to be staged at the local Y. M. C. A. The Kingston Y. M. C. A. will compete in the Hexathlon contest with a large number of other "Y's" in the class "C" group, that is the associations having a membership under 250. The boys entering this contest will also be competing for the indoor athletic championships for the season of 1921-1922 of the Kingston boys' division. There are five different weight divisions—80 pound class, 95 pound class, 110 pound class, 125 pound class, and the unlimited class, or those boys weighing over 125 pounds.

Every boy must enter all six events and points will be given for his record in every event. The boy scoring the highest number of points in each weight division will be the all-around champion, while the names of the boys making the highest score in each event will be sent to New York city to count for Kingston.

Every boy making 400 points will receive a bronze Hexathlon button and every boy making 500 points will receive a silver Hexathlon button. The first, second and third in each event will receive ribbons and the all-around champion in each weight class will receive a special prize.

The purpose each year of the Hexathlon contests is to interest the average young man in large participation in indoor athletics. The dates for the meet are: For the 80, 95 and 110 pound classes, March 22nd, 24th and 25th; for the 125 and unlimited classes, March 23rd, 28th and 30th. Two events will be staged each day. Boys may now weigh in and practice.

A letter has been sent by Roy H. Hegg, the "Y" physical director to each boy who is a member of the boys department.

"Charm"
Strictly speaking, most authorities agree that "charm" should be applied to an object which has as its purpose the defense of its possessor against all evil, and has protection from any menace. This carries with it, according to some authorities, a clear explanation of the tortuous ugliness of the carvings and more or less hideous grotesqueries of the charms of more than one group of primitive peoples. The theory was that such a charm would act as a kind of "lightning rod" against evil forces. On the principle that like attracts like, they would prefer to seek the charm rather than its possessor—and to such an amulet they were harmless.

Valuable Asbestos.
It is not very long ago that a fire on the stage of a theater was an ever-present menace to the audience. Today most of the playhouses possess an asbestos curtain which can be dropped at a moment's notice and which will absolutely confine any fire to that part of the theater. Asbestos is a mineral found in the earth just like coal and iron, and mined a few years ago it was merely a curiosity to be found only in the laboratory of the chemist. Today it is used in many ways and forms an important factor in the industrial market of the world.

Poetry and Music.
Do not overlook the finer things of life. Looking back in his seventieth year, Charles Darwin said: "If I had my life to live again, I would have made a rule to read some poetry, and listen to some music, at least once every week; for perhaps the parts of my brain now atrophied would thus have been kept alive through use. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness, and may possibly be injurious to the intellect and more probably to the moral character, by encfeebling the emotional part of our nature."

Naming Mt. Everest.
Mount Everest is almost the only one of the great Himalayan peaks that has not a native Indian name. It has been the custom to adhere to the native names, but for a recent careful search failed to find a native name.

"Goldsmiths' Notes."
Banknotes were originally called goldsmiths' notes because the bankers were all goldsmiths.

Another Cure Discovered.
A tale that is told—undoubtedly goes with it if required—is of a woman who, while recovering from the current affliction of influenza, found herself a victim of obstinate insomnia. Hearing of this woe, her doctor gave her a tablet to take. This she put on a table close to her bed and when, as had become her habit, sleep would not come, she reached out in the darkness, found the tablet and took it. A few minutes later she went to sleep and so continued till morning, when she woke much refreshed. But then she saw that the hypnotic disk was still on the table, though missing therefrom was a small porcelain button that she then remembered as having been there the night before! This story illustrates again the powers of faith and imagination.—New York Times.

Good in Useful Employment.
Our greatest happiness is in useful employment. The most pleasant employment is in doing little simple things, things that require no strain of mind or excess of muscular application. It was not eccentricity that led Cincinnati back to the plow. He knew by experience that the companionship of growing things in field rows, the reveries inspired by nature's gentle contacts, soothed his consciousness and calmed his mind. The man with nothing at all to do, the man whose hands are trained only to futile things, like rolling cigarettes or carrying a cane or putting on gloves—how utterly out of place is he in a world where only babes in arms are treasured for their helplessness!—Dallas News.

ARREST SHORTLY IN BRUNEN CASE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Riverside, N. J., March 15.—Arrest of a suspect in the slaying of John Brunen, circus proprietor in his home here last Friday night, was imminent today, Prosecutor Kelsey announced.

Kelsey had in his possession a letter written by Brunen to a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Jeske, on February 20, in which he expressed fear that his wife and 11 year old daughter, Hazel, were plotting against him and that his wife would murder him for his money.

Mrs. Jeske brought the letter from Carey, Ill., when she came for her brother's funeral.

"I think Doty is figuring to do away with me," Brunen said in the letter. "She thinks she can get free for she talks about it all the time.
In case anything happens to me, sister,
I want you to come and take full charge of everything."
Brunen said his wife shot at him on Christmas Day and would have killed him if he had not dodged and grabbed the gun. He also deplored the fact that his daughter, Hazel, was being taught "nothing but the fast life of this world."

Ellis Parker, Burlington county detective, declared there was no evidence in the letter of sufficient strength to warrant an arrest. Statements in the letter constitute only circumstantial evidence he said.

Parker was indignant over publication of the letter as he said he had intended to use it secretly in his investigation. Mrs. Brunen did not know it had been written, he said,
until it was published.

The letter told only a fraction of the whole story of conditions in the Brunen household as related to him by Brunen several weeks before the murder, the detective said.

Parker had advised Brunen to keep the shades pulled down whenever he was in his house, so no one could fire at him from outside.

"If I'm going to be shot, I want the shades up so somebody will see,"
Brunen replied.

Mrs. Brunen is maintaining a policy of silence and has retained

Walter Kohn of Camden as her attorney.
Investigators today were checking up on the time of the murder with the time the alarm was given to neighbors by Mrs. Brunen. They are also working on the theory that a man was hired to do the shooting.

PROTESTS INNOUENCE

Electric Current Cuts Short Negro's Accusations.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Nashville, Tenn., March 15.—
Maurice Mays, a negro, went to death in the electric chair at the state penitentiary here today declaring that he was "dying to satisfy a few Republican politicians."
He was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Birdie Lindsay, of Knoxville in 1915.

"I am innocent as the sun that shines," the negro said as the straps of the chair were adjusted about his body. "I am dying to satisfy a few Republican politicians.
I hope they are satisfied." Gov.
Taylor has been told he would lose 50,000 votes if he interceded for me—but here the electric current ended his statement, and his life.

The Lazzaroni of Naples.

The lazzaroni were a class of vagi-bonds in Naples, Italy, which formed a distinct caste in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries. They annually elected a chief, called Capo Lazzaro, who was recognized by the authorities and frequently took an active part in political affairs. In 1647, headed by Masaniello, they overthrew the government and held possession of the city for a few days. In 1788, instigated by Cardinal Ruffo and led by Michele Sforza, they successfully resisted the attacks of the French. The lazzaroni had no homes nor regular occupations. They wore ragged clothes, were filthy in their habits and slept in the open air. They got their name either from Lazzarus, the beggar, or more probably from the hospital of St. Lazzarus, which served as a place of refuge for the destitute of the city.
Some authorities say the word is derived from the Italian lazzaro (leper or pauper).

TREATY DEBATE IS RESUMED

In Senate With Little Prospect of Quick Vote—Underwood Target
For Senators of Own Party.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, March 15.—Growing dissension among Democratic senators split on the four-power Pacific treaty was reported today to be causing a serious reaction in the higher councils of the Democratic party which threatened to lead to another fight for national control between the pro-Wilson and anti-Wilson forces.

With Senator Oscar W. Underwood and William Jennings Bryan pulling for the treaty, and Democratic leaders still counted as adherents of former President Wilson pulling against it, the ill feeling already engendered between the opposing forces was said to be spreading far beyond the senate chamber.

Several influential Democratic senators like Harrison, of Mississippi, were known to be deprecating the treaty created by the biting criticisms levelled at Senator Underwood by many of his own colleagues. They were understood to be deprecating the probable effect on the approaching congressional campaign of Democrats fighting among themselves over a treaty proposed by a Republican administration.

Underwood is expected to hold enough Democratic senators in line to assist the Republican majority to ratify the treaty, but once the armament conference pacts are all out of the way, it is considered not improbable that a concerted move will be made on the Democratic side to wrest from the Alabama senator his titular leadership which most of his Democratic colleagues are now refusing to recognize.

The known activities of Bernard
M. Baruch, former Secretary of the Naval Affairs and other pronounced pro-Wilson men around the senate since the treaty fight began, have been directed, it was declared, as much against Underwood's leadership as against the four-power pact itself.
That the issues raised by the treaty fight will be carried by the Democrats themselves to the polls this year, was believed to be inevitable and the declaration of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, a pro-Wilson man who presided over the Democratic convention at San Francisco, that Underwood made a "very grave mistake" when he asked his colleagues to ratify the treaty, was construed as but one indication that Democrats generally are likely to divide on the pact.

Resumption of debate on the treaty
in the senate today found both sides still talking away with little prospect of an immediate vote on ratification, and much prospect of Underwood having to still bear the brunt of the attacks on the treaty for at least several days to come.

PART OF LONDON PRESS PREDICTS COALITION'S END.

London, March 15.—Despite the official report given out after the meeting of the Unionist members of parliament, which stated that "there is no desire to end the coalition or withdraw support of the union ministry," a portion of the press interprets the future of the coalition to pass a resolution of confidence in the coalition as tantamount to a blow at Lloyd George.

The Star today says: "The government has been given notice to quit."
The Evening News comments:
"It is a blow to the coalition."

BADE RUTH CAPTAIN

New Orleans, March 15.—Appointment of Babe Ruth as captain of the Yankees and indefinite suspension of Bobby Roth, hardhitting outfielder, were announced in the Yankee camp.

San Antonio, Tex., March 15.— Home runs by George Kelly and Casey Stengel marked the exhibition game between the world champion Giants and the second engineers baseball team from Camp Travis which the Giants won 18 to 1.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 15.—
Burling Grimes, star pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is still a holdout.

She Was.

A little light battery, no mean artifice in these days, had been bestowed upon Mrs. Smith on account of her ability to use either hand indifferently in the execution of her duties,
which were charming. "Lor' bless you,

out condescension. "I've always been like that. I'm aspidistral."—London

SCHOOL BONDS BRING PREMIUM

This morning City Treasurer
John M. Caskin sold at public auction at the city hall school bonds in the sum of $12,500, which were bid in at par and $140 premium by John B. Alliger of the Ulster County Savings Institution. The bonds pay interest at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent.
Several New York city bond houses were also represented at the sale and the bidding was spirited between a representative of Sherwood & Merrifield of New York and Mr. Alliger.

The sale of the bonds for $12,540
shows that the city's financial condition is well thought of not only by local banking institutions but New York bond houses. The last bid of the New York concern was par and $135 premium, which was raised $5 by Mr. Alliger. With the amount of the premium the bonds brought $101.12 each or $1.12 above par value.

The Oldest Game.

Checkers is among the very oldest of games if not the oldest of all. Sixteen hundred years before Christ it was played on the banks of the Nile in the same manner as it is now played. The ancient Greeks had a game which was very similar. A set of rules established for checkers in 1800 is still regarded as the standard.

Pencil Stains on Silk.

A 10 per cent solution of potassium cyanide, carefully applied with a camelhair brush, will usually remove such spots. Peroxide of hydrogen may also be applied without injuring the material. A great deal depends on the composition of such indelible pencils or ink.

INSURANCE CASES NOT SO DULL

Testimony as to Events Before the Fire at Kelly's Has Interesting Side-Lights—Mrs. Kelly Again Admits Her Husband Is "Some Man" But on One Occasion He Acquired the Only Black Eye.

Testimony in the Hubert Kelly insurance cases closed this morning at 11:30 o'clock and attorneys began their summing up of the case. Before testimony was closed several witnesses were sworn by defendants, among them being Mrs. J. W. Kelly, at whose house Mrs. Kelly lived at the time of the fire. Mrs. Kelly on direct examination testified that she had taken an inventory in 1918 of her property in the house as well as the property which Mrs. Kelly brought to the Kelly house when she moved there after she had had domestic trouble with her husband, Hubert Kelly. This Mrs. Kelly said she did to protect herself. She testified that there was a large quantity of furniture in the house occupied by Mrs. Kelly which she had previously seen at the Kelly house before the fire and which she testified she believed had been brought to the Kelly house by Mrs. Kelly prior to the fire in order to save it. Mrs. Kelly, whose husband is in the storage and trucking business in New York, with her husband owned the Kelly house near Ellenville. When Mrs. Kelly had trouble with her husband she wrote to Mrs. Kelly who lived in New York, and Mrs. Kelly allowed Mrs. Kelly to occupy the Kelly house. Mrs. Kelly took some furniture and personal belongings with her when she moved. Later in the summer Mrs. Kelly came up and it was then she discovered a large quantity of furniture which had been in the Kelly house in her house and which Mrs. Kelly said she had been on friendly terms with the Kellys and it was to the extent that she would speak to Mrs. Kelly if Mrs. Kelly spoke to her.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Kelly said she did not know of any trouble between her husband and Mr. Kelly. Some time during the year of 1911 she remembered an incident, Kelly and Kelly had gone to the village and came home "drunk." Kelly was a little more worse for wear and in some manner Kelly had an eye blackened by Kelly and at that time Mrs. Kelly had gone down to the Kelly house, but there had been no trouble between the two families. Mrs. Kelly further testified that later her husband had met Kelly at the lumber mill and Kelly refused to get down from his wagon until Kelly had said everything was all right. Mrs. Kelly admitted that her husband was "some man," being able to handle any man "in Ellenville."

A question arose also as to what happened when the insurance adjusters came to the Kelly house some time in August, after the fire, while Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were at the Ellenville fair. Mrs. Kelly testified that the insurance adjusters did not come into the house, while Kelly testified that Mrs. Kelly told him when he arrived home that she had "got him in trouble." That the insurance adjusters had come and posed, as prospective farm buyers and that she had taken them through the house and pointed out what furniture was her own and also the large quantity which was the property of Kelly. This happened after Mr. and Mrs. Kelly had straightened out their domestic trouble at the suggestion of Mrs. Kelly and were again together.

Kelly was recalled to the stand and testified that one day during the trial he and his wife were in the court house when Mr. Markowitz, husband of one of the witnesses, had approached him and offered to "fix it" if Kelly would pay him $100. Kelly testified that Markowitz said he controlled his wife, Mrs. Markowitz, and she would testify and "fix it" for Kelly if he was paid $100. Kelly testified that he had refused and told Markowitz to see Mr. Mills, attorney for defendant companies who stood nearby. Mr. Mills did not hear the conversation. Markowitz also told the same thing to another witness and requested that the witness see Mr. DeVany and have the thing fixed for $100. Mrs. Kelly was also called by Mr. DeVany and testified to being present when the offer was made.

The case is one of the most interesting cases tried in some time and presents many unusual questions for the jury to decide upon in reaching a verdict.

FRANCE WON'T REPLY.

Says Allies Must Agree On Policy Toward U. S. Demand.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, March 15.—The French government, it was learned today, considers itself unable to reply to the claim that America has made for payment of expenses of the American army on the Rhine, out of German reparations funds because officials believe that an inter-allied agreement must first be reached on the matter. It is stated here that it is impossible for the nations concerned to reply singly. The American claim probably will be referred to the Supreme Council of the League of Nations for adjudication.

Fordney Pushes Ahead.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, March 15.—Plans of Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee to jam the soldiers' bonus bill through the house early next week, without "crossing a t" or dotting an "i," went forward today in the face of reports from the presidential party in Florida that efforts would be made to thwart his program of immediate action.

Wrangling in Name.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Rome, March 15.—Discussion has broken out between the Fascist and the Republican in Rome following the refusal of Signor Giolitti to take charge of the free city. The President is blocking the formation of the government that it was hoped would be established the first of this week.

ONE LOCKWOOD BILL DEFEATED

Senator Walton Aids in Fight on Measure to Compel Insurance Companies to Invest in Mortgages.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, March 15.—After a strenuous debate, the senate early this morning killed the Lockwood housing committee bill designed to compel insurance companies to invest 10 per cent of their investible assets in mortgages. The vote was 24 to 24.

Senator Tolbert, New York city Republican, who led the fight for the bill, moved to reconsider the vote by which the measure was lost. Its death however, is assured, legislative leaders say.

Senator Lockwood, chairman of the committee which bears his name, asked to be excused from voting, saying he had long been connected with insurance companies and did not think it proper that he should vote on the bill.

The attack was led by Senator Fearon, Republican of Syracuse, who was ably supported by Senator Walton, Ulster Republican. Senator Fearon declared that it was "bad legislation." He asserted he did not believe such a law could be enforced.

Senator Fearon read from the report of the Lockwood committee, showing that Senator Lockwood had declared in committee that he was opposed to the bill.

The Lockwood bill creating a state trade commission was reported out last night by the senate cities committee, but every indication is that this also will go down to defeat in the senate. The measure compelling prison sentences for convicted violators of the anti-trust laws, also is sure to be beaten. If this bill should possibly pass the senate, it will be killed in the assembly because Speaker Machold is strongly opposed to it.

With only one dissenting vote, the senate passed the housing bill extending until April 1, 1932, the period during which the ten year tax exemption would apply to houses on which construction has begun.

After an all-day session, the assembly passed the housing bill sponsored by Assemblyman McWhinney which would give mutual insurance companies the same business opportunities as stock companies enjoy. There was no opposition to the measure.

SOUTH AFRICAN REBELS FALL BACK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 15.—Fordsburg, the stronghold of the rebellious miners in South Africa, was captured today by government troops after a seventy minutes bombardment, according to a despatch from Johannesburg.

The troops now are engaged in clearing the Fordsburg streets.

It is reported that hundreds of prisoners were taken.

Many of the rebels who escaped capture are falling back toward Langlaate, hoping to make a firmer stand there.

Johannesburg is crowded with refugees, and the roads leading into the city are congested with persons seeking safety.

WHITE AND DUNDEE ARE BOTH CONFIDENT

New York, March 15.—Charley White, the hard-hitting Chicago lightweight, has been installed an 8 to 5 favorite over Johnny Dundee for their scheduled 15 round tilt at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

White, who has arrived to finish his training here, said today that he has planned to battle and is confident that he will stop the New York boxer.

"I'll left hook him into submission," White said. "I hope he tries to trade rights with me. If he does they'll never stop counting over him."

Dundee is equally as confident of winning.

"I'll box rings around him," he said.

KEEPS MEN AWAY

And Western Normal Girls Are In Furore.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 15.—Western Normal students are in a furore today over the announcement by President Waldo that girls would not be allowed to keep company with any man more than three hours at a time or twice a week. The leap of a Western Normal girl, made from a speeding automobile driven by John Duval Dodge, young Detroit millionaire, a few days ago, had nothing to do with the order, the president declared.

Men's Night at Baptist Church.

Tonight will be men's night at the gospel meetings now being held at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church. The Rev. W. D. Lukens of Hudson will be the speaker. The meeting last night was largely attended, and the Rev. R. P. Ingersoll, pastor of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, gave a very earnest and impressive address. These meetings will be held every night this week except Saturday and there will be a different speaker and a different singer each evening. While different groups will attend each night, the services are open to all. The meetings close Sunday night.

Harding to Doxley.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, March 15.—The question of whether the United States will be represented at the Genoa conference by an "unofficial observer" will be decided by President Harding when he returns from his Florida vacation trip. It was officially stated at the state department today.

HOW

ALASKAN NATIVES MAKE USE OF REINDEER HIDE.

A new article of commerce is the reindeer carpet, made by Fort Grease (Alaska) natives. The material used in this unique rug comes from the Alaskan reindeer and each carpet, 12 by 14 feet, is composed of 300 pieces of the fur, alternately light and dark, cut into small shape and sewed with sinews. The border, 10 inches wide, is also of the tiny squares, but nearly black. The lighter fur pieces are cut from the hide of the under part of the reindeer, darker fur being that over the back and flanks. Fur cut out of the hide from the head and neck furnishes the black squares of the border.

Many reindeer have stone-colored coats, with beads and a mane like buffalo growing down their breasts. Others are spotted, quaker gray and white, and the hair is short, soft and very thick. If the animal is killed in early fall, the fur is prime, and will not come out in tufts.

The reindeer rugs sell readily at $100 each. Four native women of the Seward Peninsula district can finish a rug in a week.

The fur carpets when once laid, especially on waxed floors, will last indefinitely and may easily be swept and cleaned.

WONDERFUL PIECE OF WORK

Why the Watch Has Been Called the Most Delicate Machine That Can Be Constructed.

It is said that the watch is the smallest, most delicate machine that was ever constructed of the same number of parts. About 175 different pieces of material enter into its construction, and upward of twenty-four hundred separate operations are comprised in its manufacture.

Certain of the facts connected with its performance are simply incredible, when considered in total. A blacksmith strikes several thousand blows on his anvil in a day, and is glad when Sunday comes around; but the roller jewel of a watch makes every day, and day after day, 432,000 impacts against the fork, or 137,680,000 blows in a year without stop or rest, or 3,153,600,000 in the short space of 20 years.

These figures are beyond the grasp of our intellects, but the marvel does not stop here. It has been estimated that the power that moves the watch is equivalent to only four times the force used in a flea's jump; consequently it might be called 4-flea power. One horse power would be sufficient to run 270 million watches.

Now, the balance wheel is moved by this 4-flea power one and 43 one-hundredths inches with each vibration—3,558 1/2 inches continuously in one year.

It doesn't take a large can of oil to lubricate the machine on its 3,500-mile run. It requires one-tenth of a drop of oil to the entire watch for a year's service. But it has great need of that one-tenth of a drop.

How Mushroom Exerts Force.

How is a mushroom, so fragile and feeble, able to force its way through concrete and asphalt? How is it able to carry up with it huge stones which have been cemented down? How is it that a mushroom can split a stout brick wall? The mushrooms in a garden at Beckenham did this some little time ago, pushing out a block of brick work and mortar weighing 170 pounds, though the mushrooms themselves weighed less than three and one-half pounds. It is the result of one of the wonderful forces of nature which men can examine and explain and yet cannot cease to marvel at. By its gentle and continuous pressure, the growing and expanding mushroom can lift weights big enough to crush things a thousand times as strong as itself.—New York Herald.

How South America Divides Day.

The official day in many Latin-American countries is divided into 24 hours, numbered consecutively from 1 a. m. and ending at midnight. The midnight hour is sometimes designated as zero instead of 24. Thus, 4 o'clock in the afternoon is 16 o'clock, according to this scheme, and 9 o'clock is 21 o'clock. In Argentina, for instance, it is compulsory to use this 24-hour system in connection with any public document, such as a theater program, contract, mortgage or judgment of a court, and the old system is prohibited, excepting that in the theater programs it may be used concurrently with the 24-hour system.

Why They No Longer Speak.

While at boarding school I corresponded with an old schoolmate who at one time had gone with my class. They had quarreled and Bill began to write me. I answered, but was in conceal the whole proceeding from Katherine. One day she asked if she shouldn't get my mail when she went for her own. As I was not expecting a letter from Bill I gave her my key and thanked her for thinking of it. In a few minutes she returned with a letter for me, bearing Bill's return address in big letters.—Exchange.

Why Rats Are Public Enemies.

It was formerly considered that it cost $2 a head to feed rats. The latest, and probably more nearly correct, estimate is $7.50 a head. Even this estimate does not take into consideration the rat as a menace to health.

Cleaner Sponges.

A sponge which has become too hard to use can be softened if put in clear cold water to which a little borax has been added. Let the water boil, remove the sponge, rub each box into it and rinse in cold water.

SOVIETS OBSERVE FIFTH BIRTHDAY

Trotsky Tells Workers U. S. Is Doing More For Russia Than All Europe—Predicts Critical Three Months.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Moscow, March 15.—Trotsky, Soviet war minister, addressing a conference of Soviet workers in this city celebrating the fifth anniversary of the Russian revolution, warned the Russians not to place hopes in the Genoa conference which "is looked upon by the enemies of Russia as the signal for an offensive."

Trotsky warned his hearers that a union of Finland and Poland means danger of another war. He charged that the Russian monarchists in Ukraine were preparing uprisings of the populace, and said he had heard it rumored that the Grand Duke Nikolaievich was negotiating with American capitalists. He predicted that the Allies would force the border states to attack Russia in the event that Russia did not yield to the Genoa proposals.

"Russia is not willing to return to the capitalistic order," he declared. Trotsky lauded the American relief association and said that the United States was giving more aid to Russia than all of Europe combined. He urged that Russia manifest a spirit of friendliness toward the United States.

Although he declared that it was reported that American capitalists are financing General Wrangel, he said it would be the greatest holiday when the United States announced "that it is unwilling to support the hangmen of the Russian workers."

Trotsky predicted that there would be a critical time in Russia during the next three months.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing It
When you wash your child's hair be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.
The best thing to use is Multisilf coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces.
Two or three teaspoonfuls of Multisilf in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Multisilf at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisilf.—Advertisement.
